New Taxing Scheme Set Forth in Bill

Court Reference on Validity
Before Effective

Taxation of farm production with a view to eliminating farm land taxes and a tax of two per cent on first and second mortgages on land were provided for in bills introduced in the Alberta legislature Friday with the production tax to be made a court reference on its validity before being made effective.

Voting 45 to 10 on division the house also gave second reading to the bill providing for security of home owners. The bill bars foreclosure on mortgaged urban homes without deposit of $2,000 which goes to the home owner if the foreclosure is allowed and also bars foreclosure on farm houses.

4 Toronto Mothers Devide $500,000

Each Got $125,000 As Maid
A Tie for Births

Mr Justice W F Middleton gave judgement in the Ontario supreme court ruling the $500,000 Charles Vance Miller baby-darby will estate was to be divided among four Toronto mothers Mrs Annie Smith, Mrs Kathleen Nagle, Mrs Isabel MacLennan and Mrs Alice Tinsley.

Each of the four registered nine births within ten years of Miller's death. Oct 31, 1928. Strife in a tie in one of the strangest races ever waged. Miller, eccentric Toronto lawyer left the residue of his estate to the mother registering the largest number of births in that time.

Annual Irish Concert At St. Ambrose Hall

Splendid Program Rendered By Medicine Hat Artists

The Annual Irish concert was staged at St. Ambrose Parish Hall on March 17th. Under the most capable direction of Mrs. Jean Hayes the following artists rendered songs, both in concert and solo, and humorous monologues.

Mrs. Jean Hayes director: Miss Kitty White, Miss Eileen Wharton, Messrs W. Oates and F. Blackburn.

There was a short moving picture show to open the evening after which the entertainment was in the capable hands of Mrs. Hayes.

The visitors program opened with a chorus by all the artists present with the selection of "The Dear Little Shamrock."

The solos and choruses rendered by the visiting artists were of the most interesting Irish selections and were most enjoyed by the crowd.

We are pleased to announce that Mrs. Hayes and company have arranged to give a second night in the fall when they will render either a Harvest Supper or a tanka giving party during the season of thanksgiving.

Farmers Need More Feed, Seed For This Season

Farmers of Opinion Crop Is Not Providing Enough

As farmers in this district and all around Medicine Hat are apparently not being provided with sufficient grain seed, motor fuel and fodder by the Alberta government for this spring, and it is stated by the Chambers of Commerce, that the amount designated is much inadequate to cover the requirements.

It is of the opinion that as farmers have no seed or feed available for requirements as shown on official list, that the amount is approximately from 25 to 50 per cent of what is actually needed and in some sections only about 5 percent.

At the present time, weather conditions and moisture appear to be promising for favorable crops this year and weather experts are also predicting favorable weather.

Because of this some reasonable assistance should be provided for the farmers.

School Literary News

SCHOOL

The Redcliff Literary Society met in the school club room on Friday March 18th for a most interesting meeting.

After the business was over the Redcliff Literary Gleases was read by the editor. The next item on the program was a solo by May Martin accompanied by Doreen Cooke on the piano. A tap dance was then well rendered by Mrs. Stratton.

An amusing story was read by Evelyn Fulton. It was followed by a talk on "Hobbit and Handicraft" in general by Norma Osgood. Segred Hastad gave a concise talk about "Modeling."

He was again followed by a delightful duet sung by Doreen Cooke and Joanne Balmer.

Another entertaining hobby "Fretwork" was given by Harvey Bainbridge. Next on the program was the "Sailor's Hornpipe" by Zelda McKay.

Another speech was given by Carol Nelson on "Beadwork." The last item on the program was a song "Ten Pretty Girls" rendered by the following: Betty Balmer, Kathleen Sheehy, Phyllis Siddon, Mary Swain, Evelyn Kalkstedt, Marjorie Fairbridge, Gene Mallard, Vivian Marty, Amelia Bastein and Ellen Hope.

This week's thought contributed by the Grade 9 committee: "Be worthy of your penicil."

Irrigation Will Solve Problems In Drouth Area

Federal and Provincial Cabinets
Should Get Busy

As neither the Federal government or the Alberta legislature has yet started any active movement for trying to solve the problems of lack of moisture in the drouth areas of this province.

The only movement which will solve the problems of farmers in the drouth areas appears to be by all, is the bringing in of moisture.

In districts where irrigation has been brought through parts of the province, those districts have been prosperous and are being settled by newcomers every year. If this has been proven the solution of hard farmers why can't it be carried on to more drouth districts.

In regard to what irrigation has done, the Brooks Bulletin says:

"The security of agriculture in this irrigation district has attracted widespread attention. While millions of acres of farm land in Saskatchewan and Alberta have been virtually useless for at least two years, our acre have been green lush and productive. The farmers who live in this district need not worry about cloudless summer skies and searing drouth."

The Bulletin says further:

"If we cannot produce wheat as cheaply as other districts, and years of drought crops, we have a variety of other forms of agriculture to fall back upon—milk production, sheep-raising, hog-raising, seed production, honey production, the raising of vegetables and fruit and so on. And our water guarantees us crops year in and year out."

See our splendid new spring line of dress and work shirts, hats and caps, shoes, underwear, etc. etc. A call will convince you of low prices and quality.

Bones Amature Hour Was Gooey Program

Was Well Attended and Much Enjoyed by All

Gordon Memorial annual amateur night was held on St. Patrick's night last Thursday evening and the school room was filled to capacity.

A number of young people took part in the program and the gathering was well pleased with the selections rendered.

The grand prize was won by Kathleen Sheehy with her dandy selection. Girls singing prizes were won by Joyce Balmer and Alice Shilman and boys by Bruce Sheehy, Jack Hope and Ernie Goodie.

Recitations were won by Alice Shilman and Margaret Myers, Robert Shaw and Betty Palmer, won for tap dancing.

Special selections in singing were won by G. Sheehy and G. A. Begood, for boys and Joanne Balmer and May Martin for girls.

The pie eating contest was won by Howard Osgood.

During the evening several chaste selections were rendered by Mr. Turner, and adult selections were rendered by Mr. T. T. Cooke, Mr. W. Swanson and Mrs. W. Thacker.

Mr. C. T. Hall acted as Major Jones and the judges were Messrs. A. Baker, M. McNaughton, Medicine Hat and Mr. Turner.

There were 18 entries in the contest and they were all thoroughly enjoyed.

Orvis A. Kennedy, Social Credit in the federal by-election in Edmonton last Monday, was elected with a majority of 2,215.

The other candidates were R. C. Landahl, Liberal, and W. C. Cleary, conservative.

The vote cast for Kennedy was 10,482, for Marshall 8,267 and Cleary 2,767.

The average man on the street who is not a supporter of Social Credit may be inclined to think that the Liberals and Conservatives had worked together to defeat Kennedy by about 500 votes.

When a sudden torrent of water sweeping down the Los Angeles river washed out the section of a wooden bridge leading to the naval landing at Long Beach, California, several sightseers on the bridge, estimated variously from eight to eighteen, were swept out to sea and drowned. Death toll ran high and property damage heavy in the storm, the worst in South California's history.

and debentures, first mortgages and other securities.

Question.—What do these investments accomplish?

Answer.—They help to finance the undertakings of our Federal and Provincial Governments—our municipalities—our industries and public utilities. They also aid in building new homes and schools—and in improving farms.

Q.—What is the total amount of Life Insurance funds invested in Canada?

A.—More than Two Billion Dollars.

Q.—What does this sum represent?

A.—It represents the accumulated savings of more than 5,500,000 Canadian men and women.

Q.—How do I benefit from these investments?

A.—Through good roads, new schools and local improvements made by your own municipalities, which, in turn, create employment.

Q.—What is the employment back of these invested funds?

A.—The security of the individual loans, in addition to the integrity of the borrowers—whether governments, corporations, or individuals.

Q.—Have the Life Insurance companies of Canada kept faith with their policyholders?

A.—Yes. In good times and bad, they have fulfilled every guarantee 100 cents on the dollar.

WE OWE YOU MONEY

Payable in CASH—ON DEMAND

If yours is one of the 4,740,000 accounts in which people have dollars on deposit in Canada's chartered banks, your bank owes you money.

That money does not belong to The People, the government, the nation, or to your neighbour. It is YOURS.

If you are a savings depositor, the bank, in addition to providing safety, pays you interest on YOUR MONEY just as a borrower pays interest to the bank, for

WHAT IS A BANK?—It is an institution organized to receive deposits and to make loans; that is the mechanical description. But it is a much more human place than that; it means much more to YOU.

Your bank is a place where you can deposit money for yourself and your family, with every assurance that you can get it back whenever you call for it—in full and with interest.

The bank's books show your deposit as a sum of money if owed to you—must pay to you when you ask for it—a liability of the bank.

Your bank is, too, a place where persons worthy and reliable may borrow for business or other legitimate purposes.

The borrower must be worthy.
By worthy, we mean that because of his record for honesty and integrity, his business success, and the things he owns, he may be counted on with reasonable certainty to be willing and able to repay. We MUST know that he is a "good risk," for we MUST keep YOUR deposit and those of all other depositors SAFE, against the day you call for what WE OWE YOU.

As a depositor, you are our creditor; we have to be prepared to pay you in full. Therefore we must do our utmost to collect in full as much as we loan, plus our costs of operation.

We pay interest for deposits and charge interest on loans.
You will be surprised when we tell you the range of our costs, the smallest of our margin of profit.

Bank deposits are the money of certain people we call "The People." There is the substance of Canadian banking as plain as a photograph. You have known it for a long time; you can be certain know just where money it is they speak of when they talk about the community's claim to bank deposits.

More than 4,740,000 people in Canada—equal to more than 61 per cent. of Canada's population—have "money in the bank"— deposits lodged with Canada's chartered banks—some have more than $100,000 are savings deposits receiving interest on their money.

Canada's chartered banks have paid over $257,000,000 in interest on deposits in the last ten fiscal years.

Savings of the Canadian people have grown to $1,500,000,000—the average savings deposit being $25.

There are about 660,000 current accounts of individuals and corporations totalling $670,000,000 in Canada's chartered banks.

It takes the equivalent of nearly three average savings accounts to make one loan of $1,000.

And it takes the net profit, now and above the costs of doing business, an average of 100 cents each for a year, to make up the loss of one single loan of $1,000.

This shows what care the banks must take in lending. If the depositor's funds are to be safeguarded, for the net profits of banks are less than one-half of one per cent. on their total assets.

Without deposits a bank could not long continue in business. YOUR MONEY invested on deposit in the bank ONLY AT YOUR WILL, and if you think the bank is lending recklessly, you will draw it out.

The bank must always keep itself in a position to pay you your deposit, in full, in cash, whenever you choose to call for it.

Canada's chartered banks realize that the well-being of your home, the happiness of your family, the education of your sons and daughters, their start in life, their progress in business, your protection for a rainy day, your peace of mind in the twilight of life, may depend largely upon this money—money you have deposited in a bank—money YOUR BANK OWES TO YOU.

THE CHARTERED BANKS OF CANADA

Your local branch bank manager will be glad to talk banking

2-WAY RELIEF FOR THE MISERY OF COLDS

The speed with which "Aspirin" tablets act in relieving the distressing symptoms of colds and accompanying nose throat is entirely unique. And the treatment is simple and pleasant. This is all you do. Crush and dissolve three "Aspirin" tablets in one-half glass of water. Then gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back. This medicinal gargle will not only soothe a sore throat but will kill the irritated membrane of your throat. Pain comes promptly; rawness is relieved. You will say it is remarkable. And the few cents it costs effects a big saving over over-the-counter cough and strong medicines.

"Aspirin" tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trademark of the Bayer Company, Limited, of Windsor, Ontario. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

This, it was assumed, would notify traffic police that the driver was speeding.

CHAPTER VI.—Continued

"It'll never be the same, m'ud," said Crump.

"Nonsense. What happened to you?"

"Eh, m'ud, she came back."

"Come back?"

"Yes, m'ud. I left her dead, as dead as Napoleon. I closed her eyes. Then she vanished. I thought Bost had taken her away—for a joke—but he denied it. A few minutes ago I went into my room to get a handkerchief, and there she was! Her eyes were open and she was wagging her tail!"

"But they don't, you know," said the earl.

"Dead pigs, I mean."

"You're kidding me for asking, Crump," said the earl, "but were you just a tiny thought stupider?"

"You know that I am never in the least inebriated, except, perhaps at Christmas," said Crump.

"That's not admitted the earl. 'It must be a miracle then. Let's investigate it.'"

An expeditionary force, headed by the earl, with Lady Ross and Ernest close behind him, and Crump and Mrs. Featherby forming a treacherous rear-guard, pushed into Crump's room, which was just off his pantry.

"You're right, Crump," said the earl. "Her eyes are open and she is wagging her tail."

He stopped a dozen feet from where the dog lay in her basket-bed by the fire-place.

"Nice Elaine. Good doggy," he said, and continued to gaze at him fondly, while wagging her tail.

"Well," said the earl, "I wasn't afraid of her when she was alive. I suppose I shouldn't be afraid of her ghost. I am, though," he added. Cautiously he edged nearer to Elaine.

"Nice ghostie, nice ghostie," he said, and stretching out his hand he patted Elaine's wagging her tail.

"Stuffed!" he exclaimed. "She's been stuffed."

"But," said Crump, in the doorway, "police for fight."

"This one does," said the earl. He bent closer and could hear a tick-tick-tick. "Clock-work," he said.

"By Jove, how clever! You'd hardly know her from the old Elaine, would you, Crump?"

The butler came forward and laid beside Elaine. He stroked her with hands which trembled a little. Elaine gave a short, sharp bark. Crump catapulted back on the seat of his leather trousers.

"Crump?"

"Yes, m'ud."

"Get up, you're together. The creature can't hurt you."

"But she barked, m'ud."

"I know that," said Crump. "And a most life-like bark it was. But she's not a ghost, Crump. At least she doesn't feel like a ghost."

"You're afraid," said Ernest. "That I am to blame for this. I stuffed Elaine myself. I found a very up-to-date Haidimire in Bristol and he let me do it in his shop. I wanted to surprise Crump."

"You did," said the earl. "It did not force that it would upset him so," said Ernest. "It was very stupid of me."

"It was very kind of you, sir," said Crump. "Now Elaine will continue to be a great comfort to me."

He approached the pug and stroked

"How does one make her bark, sir?" he inquired.

"You rub her between the shoulder blades," said Ernest. "And she wags her tail for twelve minutes if you don't stop her."

"She's wonderful, sir, simply wonderful," said Crump. His face was flushed with pleasure. "I'm most grateful to you."

"And I," said the earl, "am hungry. Shall we finish our dinner before something else begins to wag and bark?"

They returned to the dining room.

In the kitchen Crump was pouring the after-dinner coffee into spoons cups.

"As I remarked, my dear Sylvia, I am considered an excellent judge of men," he said. "A good butler must be. And I say this—" he wagged a finger at her to drive home his point. "He might be a millionaire or he may be a tramp; but millionaire or tramp, American or English, in the best sense of the word he's a gentleman. And now will you excuse me whilst I go to my room and wind up Elaine."

CHAPTER VII

After dinner they had a musical evening. Lady Ross, at Ernest's request, sang "Come to the Fair."

"Drink to me Only with Thine Eyes," said Ernest. "Sweet Song."

The earl, at a friendly request, attacked, with a ready voice, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "The House of the Dead." He was very much pleased by the fact that he was sure of neither the words nor the tune. Ernest, however, declined, rendering "Listen to the Mocking Bird" (with variations) on his harmonica.

"You're a splendid chap you are, Ernest," remarked the earl. "You're not only musical but you stuff a superb pug."

"Thank you, sir."

"It was an extremely thoughtful thing to do," said Lady Ross. "Your father, too, though, I'm sure, doing it, and we knew, far better than you could have, how much Elaine would mean to Crump."

"It was nothing," murmured Ernest, "nothing at all."

"And, now, Ernest," said the earl, "I want to ask you to do something for me."

"I'll be glad to, sir. What do you wish?"

"My sister Julia," replied the earl. "Oh, horribly sorry. That slipped out. Shouldn't have put her there. I really do. And she's not where to put her. If you don't have to see much of her."

"Ernest is still wondering what you want of him," his daughter reminded the earl.

"He must be," said the earl. "Well, Ernest, the fact is I should like to borrow the use of the castle for two days and nights."

"Of course you may," said Ernest. "When you want to be in the castle."

"But I don't want to leave," said the earl. "I want you to stay and sleep on one of the castle beds. Will you?"

"Oh, no," said Ernest, anxious to do the nature of the beast.

"You're counting on a thing to be right thing, as King George the Third remarked when Lucia Bingham married the baronet."

"The idea Father is trying to convey in his obscure way is that we'd like to hold the annual Hunt Ball of the Kensington House here for a night from tonight," Lady Ross said.

"You are," enlarged the earl. "It's the county's biggest ball, and it's always been held here since time began to chase fawns to these parts. We sleep some of the hunting party the night before the hunt, and the next night all the lords and ladies gather, in their pink coats and best gowns, for a night of innocent pleasures. We contribute the castle and the light members supply the eatables, drinkables and music, and a good time is had by all, except the

"I'll be very pleased to donate the use of the castle," said Ernest.

"Thank you," said the earl. "You'll see a very poor affair, my dear. Regularly filled with riders with the 'hunting' mark and get itself gently soiled at the ball. There'll be more parts of the realm about than you can shake a stick at if you are in the habit of shaking a stick at poets."

"To not," laughed Ernest. "I'll stay out of sight in my tower."

"You're doing nothing of the sort," returned the earl. "I want to explain you. You're by way of being a celebrity, you know."

"Talk of the town, and I don't mean perhaps," said the earl. "Look at this."

He handed Ernest a London newspaper.

Ernest gave a gasp of dismay. His own features stared out at him from the page. He saw a highly informal and none too flattering photograph of himself standing by a castle moat, and from the shape of his mouth it appeared that Ernest had

Total of Three Million Cars Is Being Approached

Every day during the past year an average of 800 additional motor vehicles have been put into service on the roads of Great Britain. The latest figure of the Ministry of Transport shows that a total of three million is being approached, which prompts the question: What is the situation point? When will it be reached?

Lord Nuffield recently put the figure at 10 million; and in fact as this roughly represents a car for every family, the Ministry accepts it as a definite, though improbable, maximum. Mr. Hargis, the Minister of Transport, has stated that the present rate of increase is maintained—last year it was 100,000, or 8 1/2 per cent—the present total will be doubled in 20 years. Beyond that no one is prepared to say, since so many unknown factors are involved.

What it means to the problem attendant upon such a enormous increase, there are, of course, divergences of expert opinion. The Ministry maintains that traffic congestion is becoming a serious problem in big towns, and that the country's total road mileage of 178,000, which per square mile (2.08) is already the highest in the world—London occupies.

Cannot Always Choose

Modern War Bombs Often Fly Wide Of Objective

It is a mistake that nothing else in a modern war can choose its objectives so exactly as to ensure a result. It is no longer a matter of a bomber may set out to destroy a factory on the edge of a populous town, but in the tumult of the attack, with shells bursting round him and defending planes rising in the air, it is more than likely that the pilot will either miss his aim or cast his bombs at random and take the lives of harmless citizens. But though it is hard to hit military objectives, everything goes to show that when the rebels began the present wave of bombing they had no intention of even trying. Last summer and autumn rips on Barcelona and Valencia were frequent, but were unpolished correspondents pointed out that docks and warehouses were the main ends of attack. The more the rebels aim has changed, and that they have hope of destroying the morale of a city by a few well-placed hits means—Manchester Guardian.
